The associate editor commented that she “noticed several citations of reports that might be difficult to find for the readers. Some are even not written in English. Particularly the citations of two reports written in French (Ta Phuoc 1994 and Ta Phuoc et al., 1994 references). I recommend to make an effort to find more findable references, or if not possible to develop more in details the elements extracted from these reports to be used in the present paper.”

This involved two references, cited to describe the LES subgrid/subfilter model as given by its original author. To remedy this situation, I have added a more recent reference which is more easily obtained (publicly available), that has the equations as implemented in the computational LES model that we employed.

Thanks again for your work and constructive help,
